

Commit to make something new from something old in 2013

This Christmas sweater had a spot on the arm and I would never wear it again yet the front was cute. I cut the front and back apart and applied iron-on interfacing to both sections, front and back. Then cut the front the size I wanted and laid it right sides together with the back. Trimmed back to match the front.

Then stitched all around and left an opening to turn.

Turned pillow right sides out, stuffed with fiberfill and closed opening by hand

This can be done with a sweater, sweatshirt or t-shirt.
